KNIGHTS' TEMPLAR.

St. Louis in Gala Attire—The Grand Parade Abandoned Owing to Rain.

St. Louis, Sept. 21.—In consequence of a severe rain storm which set in early this morning it was decided to abandon the grand parade of the Knights Templar set down for this forenoon. St. Louis is in holiday attire to-day, this being the first day of the twenty-third triennial convocation of the Knights Templar of America. Business men and private citizens have vied with each other in decorating buildings and residences, and the result is most pleasing.

The 30,000 knights who were to participate in the parade, were all ready to join their divisions, notwithstanding the cold rain. As time passed on the rain fell heavier and heavier, and at 9 o'clock the prospects for clearing up were not at all bright, and a few minutes later, J. R. Parsons, commander-in-chief of the commanderies, issued an order abandoning the parade. The order was communicated to the faithful knights, who had been standing in the rain ready to march, and they broke ranks greatly disappointed but very willing to get in out of the wet.

Disappointment at the abandonment of the parade was immeasurable in every quarter. Mere postponement would not suffice, as the rules of the order permit a parade only as an escort to the grand encampment, and as that body must meet at the appointed time, the rain absolutely prevented the parade at this convocation.

Said Commander-in-chief Parsons: "The disappointment is greater than I can express. The arrangements were perfect to the minutest details. We had impressed into our service for the occasion, the very best military talent in this section, and were assured of something over 20,000 men being in line at the strike of the appointed hour and had the state of the weather permitted, the parade would have been the finest ever known. As it was, however, nothing was left but to abandon it and thus cut out one of the most prominent public features of the convocation."

The local commanderies only were held at the headquarters to form an escort to the grand encampment in case the weather should allow even that small display. To the tens of thousands of spectators who had begun to crowd the streets along the proposed route of the procession the disappointment was almost as great as to the knights themselves. The decorations were drabbed and torn, while the heavy wind which accompanied the rain tore everything to pieces.

The hotel lobbies and various headquarters were thronged with knights and their friends, bewailing the misfortune of the morning. The only people benefited by the storm were the keepers of town resorts, where the places rapidly filled with those who could find no other way of passing the time. The street car and other transfer services were in great demand.

There was no parade or escort and the grand encampment began its session at 12:30, being presided over by Sir Knight Charles Room, of New York City, R. E. D. G. M., in the absence of Sir Knight Robert Enoch Withers, M. E. C. M., who was too ill to leave his room at the hotel. The session is secret.

FOREIGN NEWS.

The officers of the revolutionists of Madrid have been condemned to death. A disultry riot accompanied by firing continued throughout Belfast last night. Two policemen were severely wounded and a number of citizens injured. Twenty arrests were made during the night.

The rain interfered with Col. B. S. Robertson's speech, at Warsaw, Saturday evening. The Gazette did not present his keynote address.

There were thirty-two cases and ten deaths up to the present time in September. The school board of that city may have something to answer for.

Hog cholera is prevailing to an alarming extent in the vicinity of Xenia and Somerset. L. M. Comer, Levi Elston and Stephen Harry have lost animals of the value of $1,000, while other farmers have suffered severely. There is no abatement of the ravage of the disease, and the hog crop in the southern portion of this and Miami counties is certain to be light.

The commissioners of Huntington county have passed a resolution ordering County Auditor Lee to begin an action against ex-Treasurer Daniel Christian to recover $12,000 of public funds alleged to have been misappropriated by that gentleman while in office. Upon the retirement of Mr. Christian, his successor found his accounts in such a muddle and condition that it was practically impossible to ascertain how much money was in the treasury, and several expert accountants have been employed by the county to bring order out of chaos. Mr. Christian declares his innocence of malfeasance.

Mit Webber is Councilman.

The election contest between M. N. Webber and Geo. Ely, relative to a seat in the council from the Fourth ward, was decided in favor of Mr. Webber by Judge O'Rourke, this morning, who found from the evidence 214 legal votes for Webber and 213 for Ely. Aside from his attorneys, Mr. Webber fought the case singly and alone and discovered enough fraudulent votes to unseat his opponent, clearly, squarely and fairly on the oaths of the erring voters as taken before John Morris, jr., clerk of the federal court. Mr. Webber will take his seat in the council. Mr. Ely may appeal the case.

A MAN who is rich enough to own two handbags must not complain if he suffers some of the embarrassments of riches. A New York lawyer, who is an enthusiastic tennis-player, carried the wrong handbag into court the other day, and, after the preliminary remark that he would read from an eminent authority to show that his learned brother on the other side was all wrong, opened the receptacle and produced, not Blackstone or Coke, but a pair of bright blue knickerbockers. His learned brother grinned, and order and decorum in the court-room were maintained with difficulty.

THE TOWN of Whately, Franklin County, Mass., has a little school-house and a tavern. In the tavern is a bar. Somebody discovered not long ago that the bar was less than 600 feet from the school-house, and, if the townspeople were to regard the law, one or the other must go. So they held a town meeting recently, and, by a large vote, decided to keep the bar and turn the school into a private one.

Three Thousand Men Idle at Albany, N. Y.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 21.—Building all through the city was stopped early yesterday morning, and upwards of 3,000 brick layers, stone masons, carpenters and hodmen are walking the streets in idleness to-day. The lockout is the result of the employers in the building trades being organized as a protective union to force the master builders to purchase materials only of manufacturers employing union men.

Seven hundred men employed in the woolen mills of Seville, Schofield, Son & Co., in Philadelphia, struck for an advance of 15 per cent. in wages.

WHY SOME DEMOCRATS

Fail to Get a Renomination From Their Constituency.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—A Washington special says: "Up to the present time twenty-five chairmen of fifty-seven committees of the house have either been defeated for renomination, or have declined to stand for future honors. In addition, four other nominations are looked upon as doubtful. About the same percentage of the entire democratic representation also suffered defeat at the hands of their constituency. The reasons assigned for setting these members aside, are said to reflect seriously upon the policy of the administration, as those who were not renominated have been pronounced friends of the president and endorsed his policy."

"You Americans do not make the proper distinctions between the socialists, anarchists, and communists," said Mrs. J. A. MacGahan, the accomplished and charming correspondent of the St. Petersburg News and the widow of J. A. MacGahan, the celebrated war correspondent, to a Toledo Blade reporter. "Will you tell us the meaning of the words on the other side of the water?" inquired the reporter. "Certainly. The socialists believe in a strong national government. They think that the government should own almost everything, that it should control the railroads, the telegraphs, and run the insurance companies and the banks. Bismarck has many socialistic ideas. In Europe nobody is ashamed of being called a socialist, but here it is a pretty hard name to call any one, judging by the fate of the 'socialists' at Chicago. The communists want everything owned in common. They are not usually nihilists but they believe that the large land-owners and money-holders should be compelled to share with them. They want everybody to own the money and the land and they don't want the few to own almost all of it. The anarchists and the nihilists do not want any government at all. Those Chicago men evidently belong to this class. What do I think of the sentence? You know the Russians do not believe in capital punishment; although political prisoners sentenced to death by the military court are punished in this way. If these prisoners now in Chicago had been tried in Russia they would have been tried for treason. They would probably have been sentenced to death there. It seems to me, though, that the sentence of death upon the anarchists in Chicago would frighten away the cowards among them, but would only make the fanatics more wild and unmanageable. But I think that they have had a fair trial. They would have had a one-sided trial if it had been in Russia."

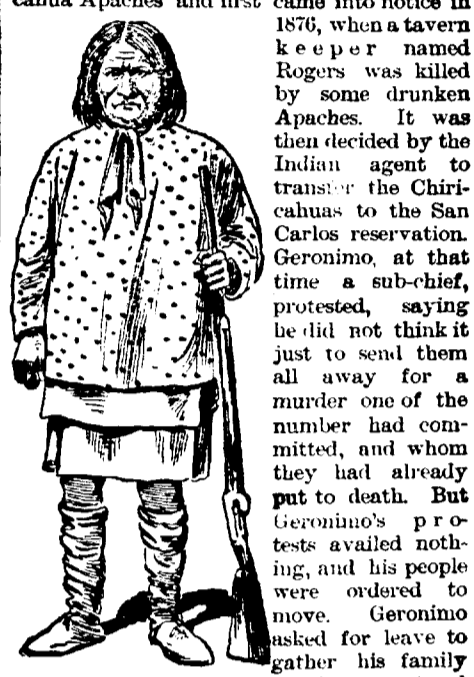

GERONIMO CAPTURED.

PORTRAITS OF THE RENEGADE CHIEF AND THE GALLANT GEN. MILES.

The End of the Trouble With the Chiricahua Apaches—History of the Trouble. Geronimo En Route to Florida—Will He be Hanged?

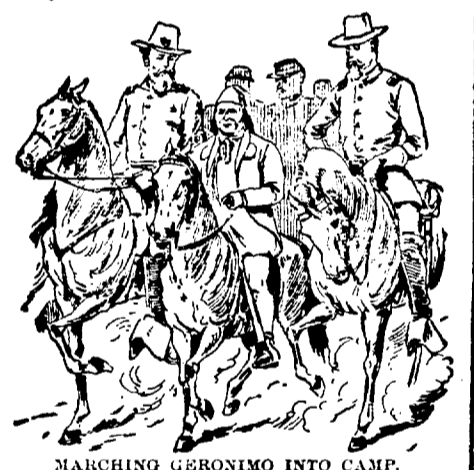

Geronimo and band, the terror of Arizona, New Mexico and Sonora, is once more captured, and it is to be hoped he will now be placed where he can no longer harm others or where he himself will not fall a victim to revenge at the hands of friends of the many he has murdered during these many years.

Geronimo is the head chief of the Chiricahua Apaches and first came into notice in 1876, when a tavern keeper named Rogers was killed by some drunken Apaches. It was then decided by the Indian agent to transfer the Chiricahua to the San Carlos reservation. Geronimo, at that time a sub-chief, protested, saying he did not think it just to send them all away for a murder one of the number had committed, and whom they had already put to death. But Geronimo's protests availed nothing, and his people were ordered to move. Geronimo asked for leave to gather his family which was scattered in the mountains. He escaped with them. He was afterward captured in New Mexico and brought to the San Carlos reservation with the rest of his tribe. Soon after this he escaped again and was out until 1878. In 1881 he made his third escape, and eluded the soldiers until 1884, when Gen. Crook brought him into camp.

GERONIMO. He escaped with them. He was afterward captured in New Mexico and brought to the San Carlos reservation with the rest of his tribe. Soon after this he escaped again and was out until 1878. In 1881 he made his third escape, and eluded the soldiers until 1884, when Gen. Crook brought him into camp.

On May 7, 1885, Geronimo led in the outbreak which has given Mexico and the United States no end of hardships since. The chief difficulty in capturing him came from the rough nature of the country, where the Apaches were perfectly at home. In fact, it is likely they would prefer a life of lawlessness, with the privilege of roaming free over these mountains, to a life of luxury in captivity.

MARCHING GERONIMO INTO CAMP.

Then Geronimo has been skipping across the Mexican border in such a way as to harass the troops. The Mexicans will not allow the United States to establish a permanent camp on their side of the line, and as the Mexicans exerted themselves but little toward his capture he fell back on Mexico as a place of refuge. Geronimo has never considered the Mexican soldiers worth bothering about any way, and boasts that he never wasted any ammunition on Mexicans—he killed them with rocks.

On the 11th of last January, it will be remembered that Capt. Ennet Crawford, while pursuing Geronimo, was shot down by a party of Mexican soldiers, who had mistaken his command for a body of hostile Indians, at least so it was said at the time. Since then reports and denials of Geronimo's capture have followed one another thick and fast, until he became like the Irishman's flea. This time it is hoped he is captured "for keeps," and to Gen. Miles is the honor due.

Gen. Miles will always be noted as a most successful Indian fighter. He it was who captured Chief Joseph and the Nez Percés in their flight through the Montana after they had successfully fought and evaded other generals. He also captured the hostile Cheyennes, who are now living in peace as farmers, on the Rosebud, in Montana. All this was accomplished after much fierce fighting. To him must be given the credit of having brought to an end the career of Sitting Bull and the final submission of his thousands of savage followers.

Gen. Miles is a Bostonian by birth, and in his 48th year. He began his career as a merchant, but in 1861 he entered the army as captain of the Twenty-second Massachusetts infantry. He has not laid down his arms since. He married a niece of Gen. and Senator Sherman.

In answer to a request from Secretary Endicott, Gen. Miles furnished the following reasons why the Apaches should be removed from Arizona. The reply is worthy of the man and of the occasion. Here is a portion of it:

You ask me why I desire the removal of the Apaches from the territory? I will tell you in as few words as possible. I ask it in the name of the territory whose prospects and progress have been blasted and retarded by the fiendish cruelties of these Indians. I ask it in the name and on behalf of the widows and fatherless children whose lives have been wrecked and whose future has been darkened by the murdering raids of these fiends. I ask it in the name of the thousands of lives that have been offered up as a sacrifice to the reservation system. Finally, I ask it in the name of civilization, which can never advance in this territory so long as the Indians are allowed periodically to terrorize the country.

Senator Jones is Not in Love at Detroit—General Rosecrans at Home.

THE PRESIDENT.

He Leaves the Mountain Resorts.

PAUL SMITH'S ADIRONDACK MOUNTAINS, N. Y., Sept. 21.—The president, accompanied by Mrs. Cleveland, Mrs. Folsom and Colonel and Mrs. Lamont, arrived here last night. Yesterday's journey was made on foot through the woods and by row boats over seven lakes between this place and Saranac Inn. After dinner was over last evening an informal reception was held in the hotel parlors. To-day Paul Smith will drive the party to Paul Smith's station on the Northern Adirondack railroad.

Although Senator Jones, of Florida, is still in session in Detroit, he has written to his friends at the south that he is going to return to the bosom of his constituents and ask for another term. He repudiates any matrimonial intentions, and says he has remained in Detroit solely on account of his health.

Hon. W. S. Rosecrans, register of the treasury, returned to the city last week from a month's sojourn among his old army comrades and friends in the west, from whom he received ovations at all points. The general is much improved in health, and ready for congress and the coming winter's work.

POLITICAL NEWS.

The official returns from Maine give Bodwell (rep.), for governor, 12,850 majority over the democratic candidate.

Ex-Senator Thurman and ex-Senator Joseph McDonald are opposing counsel in the Bell telephone case at Cincinnati. Mr. Thurman was serenaded Monday night, and in his speech said: "I shall never again hold office—never be able to reward my friends or punish foes." The tone of his remarks were pathetic in the extreme.

It is reported that Colonel G. O. Behm, a republican attorney of Lafayette, will run for congress in the Ninth Indiana district against the republican nominee (Mr. Cheadle), provided he (Behm) receives democratic indorsements.

Before Judge Hensch the case of David C. Fisher trustee of George B. Place vs. Henry J. Trentman et al., on a foreclosure for $15,000, the evidence was taken under advisement. In the case of Lester Trexler vs. Charles F. Stratton, et al., judgment of dismissal was rendered.

The marriage of Miss Kate Barnett to Mr. W. B. Beamer, of Springfield, Ill., will take place at the residence of the bride's parents Wednesday afternoon, September 29th at 5 o'clock. The reception will be from 5 to 7 o'clock.

VICTORIA'S dislike for Gladstone is said by the St. Stephen's Gazette to date back to the passage of the Irish Church disestablishment bill, in 1868. The Queen expressed to Gladstone her aversion to the essential principle of the bill, and he replied: "But, madam, you must sign." The Queen flushed and rejoined with indignation: "Sir, do you know who I am?" "Yes, madam, the Queen of England. But does your Majesty know who I am? I am the people of England."

There is already some talk of shifting candidates on the republican ticket. It is too late. Its name is "Dennis."

Reports from all the commercial circles are to the effect that business is increasing enormously and the fruits of democratic rule are ripening.

The Gazette refuses to put the "people's" ticket in their paper or give the candidates a word of praise. They realize the fact that its name is Dennis.

Mr. ANDY A. PURMAN will fix no more slates for the republicans to smash. He coached Messrs. Tresselt and Rohan cleverly, but the stalwart republican machine was too much for him.

Mr. HARRY C. HANNA was not afraid to tell the "fusion fixers" Saturday that they were in a republican convention. Mr. W. T. Abbott, Mr. Christian Tresselt, Mr. Peter Notestine, and Capt. J. H. Rohan realized this fact after being taken into the republican household to be slaughtered.

CAPTAIN JOHN C. NELSON, democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, reports that the prospects for democratic success are exceedingly bright. The party is awake all over the state and its members are enthusiastic and confident. Mr. Sweeney, candidate for superintendent of public instruction, makes an equally encouraging report.

The Lagrange Democrat says that Judge J. M. Gale, of Angola, prohibition candidate for lieutenant governor, was greeted by a large audience at the opera house last Thursday evening. Judge Gale is a profound reasoner and a forcible debater and everlastingly ridiculed the "temperance" plank in the republican platform. He complimented the democracy for their positive stand and honest opposition, but held up to the public gaze the insincerity and rank hypocrisy apparent in the republican effort to carry water on both shoulders.

The occurrence of earthquakes, says the Providence Journal, can never, of course, be prevented. Nor should there be any desire of such prevention, since we now know for surety what was long dimly seen, that these dreaded shocks are an almost indispensable benefit to man. Science shows that they are in reality the instruments by which the crust of the earth is protected from more terrible catastrophes.

At a time when weekly and monthly periodicals are inviting writers "without sin" to cast their critical stones at the newspaper press it is refreshing to have from the highest court in England a precise and common-sense definition of what constitutes the freedom and responsibility of the press. The newspaper of to-day generally realizes its mission, and strives with diligence and some success to fulfill it. It knows its freedom and accepts its responsibility. The chief complaints against it come from those whose withers have been wrung. It was so in the case where the Lord Chief Justice of England took the opportunity to define the rights and restraints upon its privilege. An article in the Admiralty and Horse Guards Gazette charged that the celebrated gun-making firm of Armstrong & Co. "either were, or sometime had been, members of a ring having for its object the acquisition of public contract for the manufacture of ordnance, and had effected, or were endeavoring to effect, their object by means of dishonest practices and by oppression, corruption, and other discreditable means." During the pendency of the suit the plaintiffs sought by an injunction to restrain further comments or a reiteration of the alleged libel. In denying the injunction Lord Coleridge said that if the offensive matter were true, "the person who exposed such a system and such a mischief would do a great public service," and therefore it was privileged, and the "onus was on the plaintiff to show that the privilege had been exceeded." Here is a clear recognition of the right of a newspaper to expose any public scandal or misdeed. The decision put the burden of proof of private malice, as well as the falsity of the alleged libel, upon the plaintiffs, and protected the newspaper in its continuous comments, which can only be stopped after the article has been proved libelous by a verdict.

Drexel, the Philadelphia banker, each worth $4,000,000, who have been brought up to look after their own affairs, and to make good use of their wealth. They maintain a great educational charity at Torresdale, Pa., and are said to have a list of 350 pensioners upon their private bounty. They live and dress plainly, and horses are about their only dissipation. They have just sailed for Europe to visit the educational institutions of the old world, and gather points for their own guidance in the management of their school.

When they brought a dynamite bomb into court during the anarchist trial at Chicago, the Judge was tremendously alarmed. "Take that thing away!" he shouted. "Take it away! I don't want to be blown up!" "May it please the Court," interposed the attorney, "it's perfectly safe. It won't go off, if we are careful with it, as we propose to be." "Take it away," roared the Judge to the attorney, "take it away! I'm not used to any of these dangerous explosives. I'm not a married man like you are, with years of experience! Take it away!" and it had to be removed before the Judge would be pacified.

A voice from Italy.—Rev. W. C. Van Meter, superintendent of the Italian Bible and Sunday School Mission, at Rome, Italy, writes under date Sept. 1, 1886: "The Italians call POND'S EXTRACT 'acqua di Dio' Water of God. We use it for every ache and pain; it is indispensable in our medical department. I knew it was good before, but now, I cannot find words to express my praise of its excellence." Invaluable for Cuts, Burns, Catarrh, Neuralgia, etc.

John Pearson, of Jackson township, Boone county, was arrested yesterday, charged with the murder of his ten-year-old son by choking him so severely that death afterward resulted. He waived examination and will go before the grand jury.

There is one thing nobody ever regrets—that is, the day they first adopted Parker's Tonic as their regular family medicine. Its range is so wide, and its good effects so sure, that nothing else, except good nursing, are needed in a great majority of cases. Buy it, try it, and afterwards it will not require any praise from us.

The board of commissioners of Adams county have allowed Surveyor Simcock $4 per day for 275 days' work performed since June, the aggregate being $1,100. He employed deputies at $40 per month, who went out and accepted one ditch only on each trip, when they might have made half a dozen. There is much excitement about it.

For several years I have suffered greatly from periodical returns of hay fever. At the suggestion of Covert & Cheever, druggists, I obtained Ely's Cream Balm and used a portion of it during a severe attack. I can cheerfully testify as to the immediate and continued relief obtained by its use. I heartily recommend it to those suffering from this or kindred complaints.—(Rev.) H. A. Smith, Clinton, Wis.

Advice to Mothers.—Mrs. Winlow's Bothing Bypup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferers at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub wakes as bright as a button. It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Jan. 18-20adawit.

THE TRUE STORY OF THIRTEEN DOGS ON A STRING.

Miss Lovetta Wilkins and Her Large Family of Queer Visitors to a Police Station—Buried Animals—Sonnet to a Grasshopper.

Gay speckled dandy in dress coat and tights, Vain, heedless waltzer through the dewy grass, Of all shrill whistlers shrillest, as you pass From field to meadow in your vaulting flights, Teach us the source of all your rare delights. When our hot sky's a dome of burished brass Your shrilling voices celebrate high mass, And vespers chant through all the sultry night. Your piping music in the summer air With soothing cadences its magic wields, Whose drowsy lullaby soothes our anxious care And rest in benediction on the fields. Gay, heedless revellers, your glad turmoil Rebukes our needless, unmitigating toil. —E. S. Hopkins.

A Lone Woman's Dogs. Miss Loretta Wilkins was very fond of dogs. She had not much else to care for, so she set her heart on them. It is better to care for a dog than for nothing at all. Miss Loretta had a large family of pets, and took care of them all herself. They were as much trouble as half a dozen babies would have been. But their mistress did not think of that, and besides she had no babies to care for. If she had had she would soon have found out how much nicer pets little children make than anything else. Babies are the boss pets, every time.

By and by Miss Loretta's family became nearly as large as that of the old woman who lived in her shoe. She had so many dogs, she didn't know what to do. If they kept on increasing at such rates they would soon eat her out of house and home, and then, getting hungry, might eat her up, too.

She resolved to sell a dozen or so of them. She had thirteen setters, which are good hunting dogs. Several of these had good-sized families of children, so that there were twenty-nine of the setter tribe in all. Miss Loretta at length found out where a man lived who wanted a whole pack of setters. He kept a kennel and bred dogs for sale. But he could not take the animals unless they were brought to him. Being a plucky woman, though she was little and very thin, Miss Loretta resolved to gather her dogs and go traveling. She tied the thirteen dogs that could walk to a string, one after another, tall and short, grown and half grown. Then she gathered the rest—six in her apron and ten in a bag—and with a watering pot upon her arm set out.

In New York the officer of a police station was waked from his sleep one night by the most uncommon sound of barks, whines and yelps that he ever did hear. He jumped a foot high and then came down again, rubbed his sleepy eyes open and found before him a little woman and twenty-nine dogs. Miss Loretta, all anxiety and apologies told him she had come to stay all night, with him at the police station. She had missed her train she said, and did not know what else to do. The good natured officer let her dogs stay in the corridor till morning. They offered to fix a bed for the queer little woman. But no. She would sit up all night with her pets, she said, and sit up she did. How they barked and howled! She let the pups out of the bag and apron during the night.

WITH HER TWENTY-NINE DOGS. Next morning she tucked them all away again as before, and with bag and apron and watering pot, and leading the thirteen dogs on a string, she started for the railway station. A policeman escorted her through the streets to see that no harm came to her or the thirteen dogs on a string. At the railway waiting room the station master said: "You can't come in here with those dogs." But go, she would. She was nervous as she did so, and a little excited, and in her haste she dropped the bag that held ten pups. It immediately began to kick and wiggle around like a headless living thing, and from it came such cries as though a dozen babies were being murdered. The thirteen dogs on a string jumped at the bag, wagging their tails and howling too. For a few minutes nobody could hear anything but those demonic dog yells.

Then Miss Loretta gathered up both her courage and her bag full of puppies again, and explained that she must deliver the setters to the man who had bought them. After that she waited in peace in the passengers' room for the train. She had to charter a whole baggage car all to her twenty-nine dogs and herself, though, before she could get them safe on their journey. The station master offered to take them in the freight car for $7.25. But Miss Loretta thought that was not a stylish enough way for her family to travel, so she got the baggage car.

A CINCINNATI BOOM.

HER EXPOSITION AND HER NEW CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

A Procession Six Miles Long—The Exposition Now in Progress the Most Varied and Extensive Yet Held in Cincinnati—New Chamber of Commerce.

The thirteenth annual Cincinnati exposition is now in progress, and will continue till October. The opening is claimed to have been the finest show ever witnessed in the Queen City. From the noise the usually quiet Cincinnati made that day, it seemed as if for the time "Solid Cincinnati" had been changed into Chicago.

They had reason to tickle themselves and be happy. The procession inaugurating the exhibition was six miles long. They say it was looked at by 250,000 people, though perhaps it may be necessary to fall a person or two in accepting this statement of a reporter in his enthusiasm. The greatest of Ohio's statesmen were present and made speeches, among them Senator Sherman, Governor Foraker and Congressman Butterworth. In the course of his happy, though brief, remarks, Mr. Butterworth made this striking observation: "The inventive genius of man is the divinity within him, and it never worked to the detriment of mankind."

EXPOSITION BUILDING.

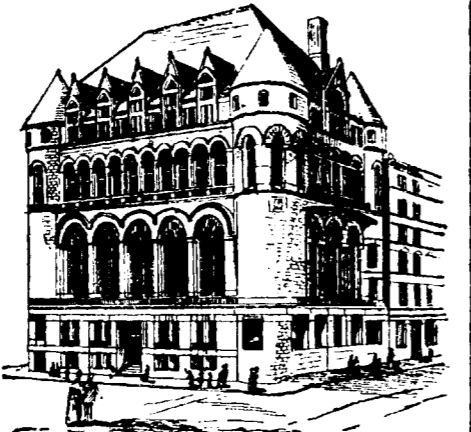

The beautiful Cincinnati exposition is one that artists never tire of copying. Many fine views of it have been taken from different points. Its architecture is unique and unsurpassed.

So was the procession that inaugurated this great display of the victories of peace. The line of carriages was led by one containing Senator John Sherman and Governor Foraker. In some features the procession was a sort of carnival show, imitating the grotesque and the comic with solid business advertising. A group of bicyclists formed part of it, riding slowly and solemnly upon their shining wheels. Among them was a tricycle containing a lady and gentleman.

The Zoological garden in Cincinnati had been leveled on for a contribution gathered from many lands. A great elephant, with a load of merry children in a cage upon his back, moved along grunting the ground with his trunk, and wondering what it was all for. A troop of living little Shetland ponies, ridden by gayly dressed, pretty children, followed the elephant. But the part of the Zoological contribution which attracted most attention was an immense leopard. It lay in the bottom of a light cage at the feet of its keeper, sometimes raising its paw toward him, playfully, so it was said. But what an awful row he might have raised, a consternation and a panic, with one little stroke of that paw. Spectators looked at him with great interest, and were relieved when he had passed. He was like a ghost story, intensely fascinating just because he was a little scary.

The floral show this year, it is believed, will be surprising. It must be remembered that Cincinnati set the fashion of industrial expositions in America. Her first one was held in 1870, in an unpainted, barnlike, wooden structure. The shed was temporary, and was soon pulled down. Unplanned board walls were the background for the high art display which the spectators looked at that year. These unwanted harns were thought good enough for expositions on those days all over the country. We have changed our ideas since then.

Special attractions for various days of the great show is the programme for expositions in recent years. Interest had quite died in viewing, year after year, the same industrial products, arranged in the same order. However excellent, they got very tame at last. The modern exposition is more like an entertainment than a fair. Cincinnati has a very full list of the special attractions for different days.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

Cincinnati seems to be having a boom in a general way this year. A new bridge and elevated railway across the Ohio is in contemplation, to cost $10,000,000, making the fourth bridge over the river here. The new structure will have an elevated railway along with its foot and passenger roads. The chamber of commerce building now being rapidly completed, is seen in the illustration. It will cost $600,000. Money is plenty for public uses in Cincinnati. That is more than can be said of most cities. The chamber of commerce building will be a handsome and imposing structure. It is at the corner of Fourth and Race streets, upon the site of the old postoffice. It is hoped and believed that it will be genuinely fireproof and no mistake.

One of the chief beauties about the new edifice in the eyes of Cincinnatians is that it will be paid for "spot cash" when done, with the exception of a comparatively small sum. There will be offices and rooms to rent in it from which an income of $30,000 a year will be had. Times have been supposed to be hard since 1872, yet since then the trade in certain lines has increased in Cincinnati some 700 per cent.

A Professional Beauty Craze.

Washington is threatened with a professional beauty craze during the coming winter. Several of the Republican senators' wives are sure they know one or two young women possessing charms of face and figure quite equal to those of Mrs. Cleveland, and they propose to invite their beauties to visit Washington during the next session, and select the White House mistress.—Washington Letter.

INTERNATIONAL YACHTING.

The Steps by Which the Modern Yacht Has Developed.

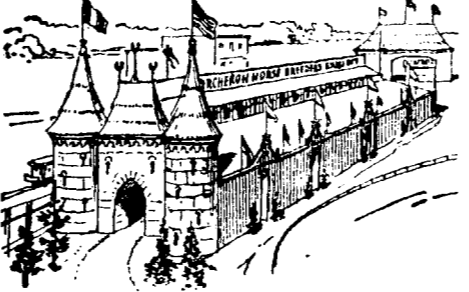

Now that the American type of yacht has proved again the fleetest afloat, it is interesting to note the stages by which this degree of perfection has been reached. When racing vessels were first built is unknown. But that such were in use by the northern nations of Europe is well attested. The sturdy old Norse chiefboats were so proud of their boats that they insisted on being buried in them. Many of their graves have been unearthed with the hulls of their vessels in sufficient preservation to show that in shape they were as beautiful and perfect as anything we produce to-day for propelling with ours. When the Phoenicians and Arabians were contending for the India trade a model of sailing ship was developed which was strikingly similar to the old-time clipper ships, which came after. The fleetness of these latter sailers, was sacrificed to the requirements of commerce.

The first yacht club on record was the Royal Cork Yacht club, organized in 1720. It demonstrated the necessity for speed of sharp bows and hollow garboards, instead of the bulging hulls that were common up to that time. Their yachts were richly carved and gilded. The next lesson the British admiralty learned in the art of building fleet vessels was from the French smugglers, whose vessels could outslip the government vessels every time.

The first international yacht race of which we have any record was sailed at Bermuda in 1840, between the English cutter Pearl and the American yacht Brenda. The Brenda was victorious. It was the performance of the yacht America in the race around the Isle of Wight, in 1851, in which she distanced the sixteen English yachts that awakened seamen to the possible improvement in yacht modeling, and brought about a revolution in yacht building.

Percheron Horse Show.

At the recent Percheron horse show in Chicago nearly 300 pure-blooded horses of this breed were exhibited. They seem to be rather taking the lead of the Clydesdales in popular favor, though for the farmers' purposes the Clydesdales are probably superior. But it is the Percherons' day now. They are as much a craze as the fashion of toadying to everything English. They are beautiful and valuable animals, too, and very handsome and intelligent.

HORSE FAIR BUILDING.

The recent exhibition was probably the most important horse fair ever held in America. Canada and the United States were alike nobly represented. The jury of awards was appointed by the ministers of agriculture of France, Canada, and the United States. About $7,000 in money was given as prizes, and many gold, silver and bronze medals were distributed. The fact was plainly brought to light that Canada possesses some of the finest horses in the world.

The Percheron craze is pronounced elsewhere as in America. The animals are bought up so fast by European nations, by Egypt, South America, and even Japan that it is impossible to supply the full demand for them in France. There are now some fifty Percheron breeders in Canada and the United States.

The Voice of the People.

The people, as a whole, seldom make noise and the unanimous voice of praise which comes from those who have used Hood's Sarsaparilla, fully justifies the claims of the proprietors of this great medicine. Indeed, these very claims are based entirely on what the people say. Read the abundant evidence of its curative powers, and give it a fair, honest trial.

Charles Arnold, a well known grocery man at Kendallville, died very suddenly of heart disease a few days ago.

In the Dear Old Days.

We differ in creed and politics, but we are a unit all the same on the desirableness of a fine head of hair. If you mourn the loss of old time and ornament, a bottle or two of Parker's Hair Balsam will make you look as you did in the dear old days. It is worth trying. It is the only standard 50-cent article for the hair.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Eppe has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle insidues are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."

Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in half pound tins by grocers, labeled thus:—JAMES EPPE & CO., Homeopathic Chemists, London, England.

"The Battle of the Wilderness," "Atlanta," "Five Forks," "Appomattox," and others by a device invented by Daguerre and Bouton, in which a painting is seen from a distance through a large opening. By a construction of transparent and opaque paintings and screens and shutters, clever scenic deceptions are produced. The company has been playing to big business.

In almost every saloon in the city there can be found at all times, in the day or evening, elaborate lunches, spread free to every hungry and thirsty patron. Many of these lunches are more elaborate than meals set forth at boarding houses or at the regular lunch counters. They consist of cold meats, hot sausages, sardines, vegetables, cheese, bread, etc. With each glass of beer a "square meal" is donated, and there is the usual "free lunch fiend," who never bothers about taking beer with his lunch at all. Each saloon has vied with the other in the breadth, depth and quality of the lunch, consequently they have become a heavy tax upon the till. In other places the free lunch is being discarded. Will it be done away with here, too?

"The railway auditors" said F. G.

have no fraternity organization or busimade at different times to meet and organize such an association but have failed in every case. A meeting was called for Cincinnati at some time during the past summer, but I did not attend and have heard nothing of its results."

Yesterday I had a horrid cold. I used

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR.

St. Louis in Gait Attire—The Grand Parade Abandoned Owing to Rain.

St. Louis, Sept. 21.—In consequence of a severe rain storm which set in early this morning it was decided to abandon the grand parade of the Knights Templar set down for this forenoon. St. Louis is in holiday attire to-day, this being the first day of the twenty-third triennial convulse of the Knights Templar of America. Business men and private citizens have vied with each other in decorating buildings and residences, and the result is most pleasing.

The 30,000 knights who were to participate in the parade, were all ready to join their divisions, notwithstanding the cold rain. As time passed on the rain fell heavier and heavier, and at 9 o'clock the prospects for clearing up were not at all bright, and a few minutes later, J. R. Parsons, commander-in-chief of the commanderies, issued an order abandoning the parade. The order was communicated to the faithful knights, who had been standing in the rain, ready to march, and they broke ranks, greatly disappointed but very willing to get in out of the wet.

Disappointment at the abandonment of the parade was immeasurable in every quarter. More postponement would not suffice, as the rules of the order permit a parade only on an escort to the grand encampment, and as that body must meet at the appointed time, the rain absolutely prevented the parade at this convulse.

Said Commander-in-chief Parsons: "The disappointment is greater than I can express. The arrangements were perfect to the minutest details. We had improved into our service for the occasion, the very best military talent in this section, and were assured of something over 20,000 men being in line at the stroke of the appointed hour and had the state of the weather permitted, the parade would have been the finest ever known. As it was, however, nothing was left but to abandon it and thus cut out one of the most prominent public features of the convulse."

The local commanderies only were held at the headquarters to form an escort to the grand encampment in case the weather should allow even that small display. To the tens of thousands of spectators who had begun to crowd the streets along the proposed route of the procession the disappointment was almost as great as to the knights themselves. The decorations were dismantled and torn, while the heavy wind which accompanied the rain tore everything to pieces.

The hotel lobbies and various headquarters were thronged with knights and their friends, bewailing the misfortune of the morning. The only people benefited by the storm were the keepers of town resorts, where the places rapidly filled with those who could find no other way of passing the time. The street car and other transfer services were in great demand.

There was no parade or escort and the grand encampment began its session at 12:30, being presided over by Sir Knight Charles Room, of New York City, R. E. D. G. M., in the absence of Sir Knight Robert Enoch Withers, M. E. C. M., who was too ill to leave his room at the hotel. The session is secret.

The Indianapolis Target shooting association will hold its annual fall festival and prize shooting matches on the 26th and 27th of September. Over $500 in prizes are offered.

The public schools of Logansport, open to-day over the protests of the county health officer, there being still considerable danger of infection from diphtheria. There were thirty-two cases and ten deaths up to the present time in September. The school board of that city may have something to answer for.

Hog cholera is prevailing to an alarming extent in the vicinity of Xenia and Somerset. L. M. Comer, Levi Eiston and Stephen Harry have lost animals of the value of $1,000, while other farmers have suffered severely. There is no statement of the ravage of the disease, and the hog crop in the southern portion of this and Miami counties is certain to be light.

The commissioners of Huntington county have passed a resolution ordering County Auditor Leo to begin an action against ex-Treasurer Daniel Christian to recover $12,000 of public funds alleged to have been misappropriated by that gentleman while in office. Upon the statement of Mr. Christian, his successor found his accounts in such a muddle and condition that it was practically impossible to ascertain how much money was in the treasury, and several expert accountants have been employed by the county to bring order out of chaos. Mr. Christian declares his innocence of misfeasance.

MILITARY IS COUNCILMAN.

The election contest between M. N. Webber and Geo. Ely, relative to a seat in the council from the Fourth ward, was decided in favor of Mr. Webber by Judge O'Rourke, this morning, who found from the evidence 214 legal votes for Webber and 213 for Ely. Aside from his attorneys, Mr. Webber fought the case singly and alone and discovered enough fraudulent votes to upset his opponent, clearly, squarely and fairly on the oath of the erring voters as taken before John Morris, Jr., clerk of the federal court. Mr. Webber will take his seat in the council. Mr. Ely may appeal the case.

A man who is rich enough to own two handbills must not complain if he suffers some of the embarrassments of riches. A New York lawyer, who is an enthusiastic tennis-player, carried the wrong handbill into court the other day, and, after the preliminary remark that he would read from an ancient authority to show that his learned brother on the other side was all wrong, opened the receptacle and produced, not blackboards or Coke, but a pair of bright blue knickerbockers. His learned brother grinned, and order and decorum in the court-room were maintained with difficulty.

The town of Whitely, Franklin County, Mass., has a little school house and a tavern. In the tavern is a bar. Somebody discovered not long ago that the bar was less than 600 feet from the school-house, and if the townspeople were to regard the law, one or the other must go. So they held a town meeting recently, and, by a large vote, decided to keep the bar and turn the school into a private one.

LABOR.

Three Thousand Men Idle at Albany, N. Y.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 21.—Building all through the city was stopped early yesterday morning, and upwards of 3,000 brick layers, stone masons, carpenters and hodmen are walking the streets in idleness to-day. The lockout is the result of the employers in the building trades being organized as a protective union to force the master builders to purchase materials only of manufacturers employing union men.

Seven hundred men employed in the wooden mills of Seville, Schuylkill, Son & Co., in Philadelphia, struck for an advance of 15 per cent. in wages.

WHY SOME DEMOCRATS

Fail to Get a Renomination From Their Constituency.

New York, Sept. 21.—A Washington special says: "Up to the present time twenty-five chairmen of fifty-seven committees of the house have either been defeated for renomination, or have declined to stand for future honors. In addition, four other nominations are looked upon as doubtful. About the same percentage of the entire democratic representation also suffered defeat at the hands of their constituency. The reasons assigned for setting these members aside, are said to reflect seriously upon the policy of the administration, as those who were not renominated have been pronounced friends of the president and endorsed his policy."

A Bank Fails.

"You Americans do not make the proper distinctions between the socialists, anarchists, and communists," said Miss J. A. Macfarlan, the accomplished and charming correspondent of the St. Petersburg News and the widow of J. A. Macfarlan, the celebrated war correspondent, to a Toledo Blade reporter. "Will you tell me the meaning of the words on the other side of the water?" inquired the reporter. "Certainly. The socialists believe in a strong national government. They think that the government should own almost everything, that it should control the railroads, the telegraphs, and the insurance companies and the banks. Bismarck has many socialistic ideas. In Europe nobody is ashamed of being called a socialist, but here it is a pretty hard name to call any one, judging by the fate of the 'socialists' at Chicago. The communists want everything owned in common. They are not usually nihilists but they believe that the large land-owners and money-holders should be compelled to share with them. They want everybody to own the money and the land and they don't want the few to own almost all of it. The anarchists and the nihilists do not want any government at all. These Chicago men evidently belong to this class. What do I think of the sentence? You know the Russians do not believe in capital punishment; although political prisoners sentenced to death by the military court are punished in this way. If these prisoners now in Chicago had been tried in Russia they would have been tried for treason. They would probably have been sentenced to death there. I mean to me, though, that the sentence of death upon the anarchists in Chicago would frighten away the cowards among them, but would only make the fanatics more wild and unmanageable. But I think that they have had a fair trial. They would have had a one-sided trial if it had been in Russia."

GERONIMO CAPTURED.

Portraits of the Renegade Chief and the Gallant Gen. Miles.

The Fall of the Trouble With the Chiricahua Apaches—History of the Trouble. Geronimo in Exile to Florida—Will He be Hung?

Geronimo and band, the terror of Arizona, New Mexico and Sonora, is once more captured, and it is to be hoped he will now be placed where he can no longer harm whomsoever he himself will not fall a victim to the vengeance of the friends of the army he has murdered during these many years.

Geronimo is the last chief of the Chiricahua Apaches and first came into notice in 1875, when a band of his tribe, named Rogers was killed by some drunken Apaches. It was then decided by the Indian agent to transfer the Chiricahua to the San Carlos reservation.

Geronimo, at that time, a sub-chief, protested, saying he did not think it just to send them all away for a number one of the number and committed, and whom they had already put to death. But Geronimo's protest was not heeded. Geronimo was taken to the reservation, but he was not satisfied. He was afterward captured in New Mexico and brought to the San Carlos reservation with the rest of his tribe. Soon after this he escaped again and was out until 1885. In 1885 he was captured again, and taken to the military camp at Fort Huachuca, where he was kept until 1886, when Gen. Crook brought him into camp.

On May 7, 1886, Geronimo led in the outbreak which has given Mexico and the United States so much trouble. The chief difficulty in capturing him came from the rough nature of the country, where the Apaches were perfectly at home. In fact, it is likely they would prefer a life of Indian life, with the privilege of running free over these mountains, to a life of luxury in captivity.

Victoria's dislike for Gladstone is said by the St. Stephen's Gazette to date back to the passage of the Irish Church disestablishment bill, in 1869. "The Queen expressed to Gladstone her aversion to the essential principle of the bill, and he replied: 'But, madam, you must sign.' The Queen flustered and rejoined with indignation: 'Sir, do you know who I am?' 'Yes, madam, the Queen of England. But does your Majesty know who I am? I am the people of England.'"
